The startup will use the capital to expand its team of 100 employees and develop its technology with participation from both private and institutional investors such as Marshland Capital, Launchpool Labs, Moonrock Capital and other investors.

"Our valuation jump has come from the fact of 12 pending patents that we have and all the other proof of benefit consensus that we've built... The UK-based conglomerate owns about 800 hospitals and a lot of real estates. So, we will also get access to a lot of relationship capital," said co-founder Gauri.

The startup will use the capital to expand its team of 100 employees and develop its technology. It intends to primarily serve businesses with its blockchain.

Gauri added in a statement that "We are on a mission to embed sustainability into blockchain and shift the current paradigm from 'for-profit' to 'for-benefit'".

This latest analysis comes even as Twitter and the central government are engaged in a face-off over the increase in the number of official demands for takedowns and account blocks. Earlier this month, the social media platform approached the Karnataka High Court challenging at least 39 such blocking orders issued by the union IT ministry.

To be sure, while the government claims that its takedown requests are in line with the rise of internet consumption in the country, cybersecurity firms rank the total number of legal demands made by India till 2020 — to social media and other technology platforms — just below that issued by Russia, which leads globally in the number of requests made.

Industry Self-Regulatory Body Aware of Grievances

The company's cofounder Divya Gokulnath, wife of founder Byju Raveendran, also attended the call, they added.

Following this, Gokulnath and senior executives shared a detailed action plan with officials to address the complaints, another person aware of the matter said.

The department officials, the sources added, pointed out during the meeting that they had received 147 consumer complaints against edtech startups. It is expected to share the full list of complaints with the edtech companies soon, they said. "Aggressive mis-selling to parents is something that was discussed, among other issues, along with certain claims being made in advertisements. Byju's was advised to work closely with the Advertising Standards Council of India (ASCI)," one of the people said.

EDUCATION SECTOR

Industry self-regulatory body ASCI said last month that of the 5,532 advertisements that it had processed in the previous fiscal year, 33% of the complaints were from the education sector, which includes edtech as well as traditional educational institutes.

dia intermediaries, may raise the issue of non-compliance, specifically with respect to its legal and content takedown orders. The ministry is likely to meet (social media) intermediaries on Friday and may raise the issue, according to people aware of the matter.

GLOBAL PERSPECTIVE

Official sources told ET that the IT ministry's detailed report, which is being reviewed at the highest levels within the ministry, reveals that content takedown orders issued by India are "not as high" when viewed from a global context.

Citing data from Twitter's own global transparency data, the MeitY report states that during the first six months of 2021, 95% of the total legal demands directed at Twitter originated from five countries, namely Japan, Russia, Turkey, India, and South Korea.
